Equity, Diversity and Inclusion

What is EDI?

EDI-related work aims to break down barriers to ensure that everyone – regardless of race, culture, gender, sexual orientation and other diversity characteristics– is able to live, work and thrive in a safe and welcoming environment.

EDI work values diversity and celebrates what makes each person unique, while emphasizing the humanity we all have in common.

Coquitlam's Commitment to EDI

As an organization, Coquitlam is on a journey to better serve our vibrant and diverse community by incorporating an EDI lens in all City business, including our policies and practices, the language we use, how we plan neighbourhoods, and how and what services we provide.

Coquitlam's commitment to EDI includes:

- Building an inclusive and welcoming community and workplace.
- Seeking to address the inherent injustices and biases that hinder and harm some people while benefiting others.
- Advancing equity for all residents, and especially for groups that have historically been marginalized, such as Indigenous Peoples, racialized or LGBTQ2S+ groups. These groups are often described as "equity-deserving groups."
